Prof. Dr SÜLEYMAN ÇATALTEPE

Through the reports that were sent to us by Email, the medical committee that consisting of a neurologist, an internal medicine specialist, and a psychiatric clinic specialist, was met. and after collect , analysis , specific reviews for all reports and medical documents we observe that : there is Complications of meningitis due to a previous injury to a metal splinter in the bones of the skull, which caused the presence of mental and psychological side effects, and after the surgery was performed to remove the metal splinter, and after conducting recent tests and proving the presence of meningitis, and after what was prescribed and using drugs and antibiotics, the existing inflammation was treated and thus reports indicate What we have in our hands is that the patient does not suffer from any problems or dangerous factors in the brain or in the nerves only needs mental, physical and psychological rehabilitation, so it is recommended to push the patient to go out for life and be exposed to community activities and activate his involvement in society and thus he has passed the danger stage.

Best regards,
